

Voices I (dissonances)

7 min audio loop

Voices of the Unheard is a call for our inner 'sense-ability' towards those who are unable to speak up for their own rights - marginalized people, suffering animals and a not so well cared-for earth. Simultaneously towards the spiritual and unconscious suffering that occurs within most of us when we forget to listen to the innermost of ourselves and others, which occurs often within the current alienating, narcissistic system cutting us off from authenticity, our ancient heritage and connection to each other and nature.

Molecular III

This iron work comes from the series Holobiont, which investigates our dependency on the external environment down to the smallest of molecules and how our bodies are affected by toxins and other disruptions originating from anthropocenic events. A genetic minority is first out to react - their rising diseases can be seen as a collective warning sign when the eco system is burdened, not just around us but also inside us, since our matter is nature.

PARADIGM

PARADIGM is a site-specific piece with a heavy concrete found fragment - left outdoors for so long in a construction site that lichens now grow upon it - and a translucent, metallic radiation protection weave hovering in the middle of a blooming cherry tree. This is the first work in a new project with the same name, that will critically reflect on cracks in contemporary knowledge, phenomena like norms, lifestyle and the consequences of the prevailing socioeconomic systems and overall paradigm.
